

PIT THEIR FAITH IN THE RECEIVER

Depositors in Schettler Bank
Reassured by Anderson.

HOLD THE SECOND MEETING

DECIDE ON NO FURTHER ACTION
FOR THE PRESENT.

At the second general meeting of the depositors of the defunct bank of R. H. Schettler, held last night, Receiver R. H. Schettler announced, and those present decided, that no list of creditors, numbering in all about 100, should be given out at present. All the creditors in attendance, however, their names being given out at the meeting, were assured that they would be given an opportunity to be heard at any time, and that the receiver would be given the right to call on them at any time.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the creditors present gave their names to the receiver, and he was assured that they would be given an opportunity to be heard at any time, and that the receiver would be given the right to call on them at any time.

Receiver Anderson arrived shortly after the meeting had been called to order, and was immediately subjected to a cross-examination of questions, many of which were entirely irrelevant to the matter under consideration, namely, the ways and means of settling the bank's affairs.

Receiver and Lawyer in Tiff.

Mr. Anderson and Attorney G. W. Meyer became involved in a discussion during which the receiver was freely indulged in on either side, principally in regard to the three Schettler deeds, which Receiver Anderson has just made the subject of suits in the Third district court.

Mr. Meyer, who was with him after a tiff between himself and Mr. Anderson regarding the latter's duties as receiver, explained the receiver's position to the depositors, and was assured that they would be given an opportunity to be heard at any time, and that the receiver would be given the right to call on them at any time.

Mr. Anderson repeatedly emphasized the fact that he would not be held responsible for any of Schettler's misdeeds in the past, and that he would be given an opportunity to be heard at any time, and that the receiver would be given the right to call on them at any time.

Mr. Meyer advised the depositors that the receiver's position was such that he would be given an opportunity to be heard at any time, and that the receiver would be given the right to call on them at any time.
